McCarthy supporters may bolt

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey supporters of Sen. Eugene McCarthy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy announced Monday they were forming a "joint steering committee" to urge a Democratic presidential platform containing the major campaign planks of both men.

The McCarthy forces, which captured 19 of New Jersey's 82 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, vowed to "go Republican" in November if Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey wins the Democratic nomination.

The Kennedy supporters in New Jersey declined to say whether they would oppose Humphrey but said it was "very unlikely" they would support him if he is nominated.

The Kennedy contingent, which said it represented "nine out of ten" New Jersey supporters of the slain senator, stopped short of an actual endorsement of McCarthy.

Albert Waxman, chairman of the Mercer County Kennedy-for-President organization, said the steering committee would urge voters to push for:

—An open convention in Chicago.

—A Democratic platform which incorporates the positions of Kennedy and McCarthy on Vietnam.

—To ensure that truly representative and integrated delegations from Mississippi and other southern states are seated at the convention.

—To call on the 61 New Jersey organization delegates led by Gov. Richard J. Hughes remain "uncommitted" until the party's platform has been adopted at the convention.

New Jersey will send 82 delegates to Chicago—61 of them headed by Gov. Hughes. 19 pledged to McCarthy and the national committeewoman, who attend the convention without being elected.

Dr. Blaiberg continues to improve

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—Dr. Philip Blaiberg, 59, who has lived longer than any other man with a transplanted heart, showed continued improvement Monday from a bad setback and his surgeon said he was satisfied with his condition.

"Dr. Blaiberg has the will to live again," said Prof. Christian N. Barnard, who performed the transplant Jan. 2.

A hospital bulletin issued at 6:30 p.m. said: "Dr. Blaiberg's progress continues. Both the lung complication and the hepatitis show further evidence of improvement. The patient is much more cheerful."

After visiting her husband in the sterile ward of Groote Schuur Hospital, Mrs. Blaiberg told reporters: "It is a miracle. He is much better."

Young girl returned

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A 2-year-old girl reported kidnapped at gunpoint was returned to her home shortly after noon Monday. The curly haired child appeared unharmed.

Vicky West, the daughter of Mrs. Helen West, 24, had been taken from her home 12 hours earlier.

Sheriff's officers and news-men on the scene reported that the girl was in the company of Mrs. Loretta Scholfield, 20.

The woman and child had last been seen in a blue auto also carrying her husband, Thomas Fulton Scholfield. The auto which returned the baby appeared to be the same one which took her, but Scholfield was not in it.

Mrs. West was not at home when Mrs. Scholfield drove up with the child, but both were taken to the Yuba County sheriff's office where the girl and her mother were reunited.

Makes Central American circuit

LBJ flies 'bright road of hope'

WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON (AP)—President Johnson flew a ceremonial great circuit route homeward Monday from a Central American summit conference which he credited with great accomplishment along a "brightening road of hope" for the hemisphere. Noisy, friendly crowds welcomed him at brief stopovers.

Throngs awaited him at airports in the old banana republics of Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Guatemala as he winged back in Air Force One toward the LBJ Ranch in Texas. A crowd estimated by the U.S.

Embassy at 50,000 cheered, chanted and waved flags in the steaming, rainy capital of Managua in Nicaragua.

In San Jose, Costa Rica the crowd was much smaller — about 15,000 — but it was enthusiastic.

The achievements of San Salvador and its four allies in their common market, Johnson said, promise that they "can respond successfully to the needs and the dreams of your peoples." The meetings of Johnson and the presidents of these five nations ended Saturday.

Sunday was a day for easing up and getting out among the people. Monday Johnson took off on an unprecedented delivery expedition to take the other visiting chief executives home on a roundabout route to Managua, San Jose, in Costa Rica, San Pedro Sula in Honduras and Guatemala city.

Never before had a U.S. president visited all five of these countries, much less been in all of them on a single day.

Johnson went out of his way to do this both in the physical sense and as a matter of friendly good will, in a 4,050-mile detour en route to his ranch in Texas for at least an overnight stay.

After leaving San Salvador, the President and the rains came down together at the Nicaraguan capital. The yelling, cheering, throng of school children, workers and other spectators got soaked. Some of the welcoming ceremony was washed out. But Johnson raced through an arrival speech under a raincoat and umbrella, picked up a grandchild of President Anastasio Somoza Jr. in each arm, and scuttled into the terminal to a reception.

There and elsewhere, former school teacher Johnson emphasized the role education must play in this. In a farewell talk at San Salvador the President said the summit session had been fruitful because it had been responsible.

"Our work of this brief moment," he said, "has moved us miles along the road that brought us here. It is a road of new hope for this hemisphere."

From Managua, the President flew to San Jose, Costa Rica to drop off President Jose Joaquin Trejos Fernandez and to pay his respects to the crowd gathered there.

He commended the Costa Ricans for their tradition of democracy, which he said had been created at the ballot box. He said Costa Rica also had a tradition of social justice and order and peace between citizens.

He said Costa Rica had set an example for all of Latin America in providing the opportunity for education. He added that the school house was the center of national life. The President asserted that during the San Salvador meeting the leaders of Central America had committed themselves to new efforts to insure greater regional cooperation.

Council's youth group against war

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP)—Youth participants in the World Council of Churches assembly, who have no vote, came up Monday with a resolution condemning the role of the United States and its allies in Vietnam. They challenged the assembly to produce a similar statement.

Harry Ashmall of Britain, spokesman for the youths, read the resolution at a council news briefing.

He said it was "a representative statement of the youth assembly," voted on in plenary session and approved by 73 votes to 2.

Ford, GM may join Chrysler in project

POCONO SUMMIT — The Erie-Lackawanna's industrial park at Pocono Summit, presently under construction, might be the largest car and truck distribution center in the Northeast United States if Ford and General Motors decide to purchase an additional 100 acres, according to J.D. Morrissey's construction foreman, Dominick Madiro.

Madiro said officials from Lackawanna, and the big three auto makers, including Chrysler, will meet at the site on Thursday to iron out a three-way sharing of the site's unloading center.

He said there's a strong possibility that Ford and General Motors will each purchase an additional 50 acres, which would triple the present 50 acre site to 150 acres.

Chrysler was the first auto maker to agree to use the site.

Cars and trucks would be shipped on piggyback railway cars from the Detroit area and on to Buffalo via the Norfolk and Western Railway where they will be turned over to the Erie-Lackawanna for movement to Pocono Summit.

"The railroad will spend approximately $850,000 in building the facility to improve tracks, ramps, loading equipment, fencing and lighting along with required flat cars equipped with tri-level and bi-level auto racks," a railroad official said in a recent release.

Madiro said that the cars and trucks will be unloaded at the siding and then loaded onto carriers for distribution to consumer markets in New Jersey, New York and all other northeastern states.

Work already completed at the site consists of moving dirt to the southeast section of the park to fill up and level off 50 acres of land.

"We've been working only two weeks and we're already half done," Madiro said.

According to Madiro the six man crew has nearly completed rough grading with three 140-ton Pans leath moving machines that also shift the earth while transporting it and two D-9 bulldozers and one D-8 bulldozer. Next week men and equipment will shift to fine grading the site.

Madiro said that the 50-foot sections of railroad track are waiting to be laid end on end for the 1,250 foot track siding which will bring the flatcars carrying the autos and trucks alongside the car and truck carriers.

Additional construction calls for a 1,250-foot by 350-foot macadam parking lot, offices at the west end of the site and a new road coming into the industrial park.

Sirhan placed in new jail

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, charged with assassinating Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was transferred Sunday from the County Central Jail to jail quarters at the Hall of Justice, authorities disclosed Monday.

Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess said: "The transfer was accomplished in a routine manner and was part of an over-all previously scheduled program of security for the inmate."

New Red offensive threatened

SAIGON (AP)—Savage fighting between U.S. Marines and North Vietnamese near the demilitarized zone pointed up Monday the threat of a new enemy offensive in the far north.

In addition to enemy pressure near the zone dividing Vietnam, the possibility of new attacks on Saigon raised the prospects that the allies may face heavy fighting on two fronts.

President Nguyen Van Thieu announced he was postponing again a visit to the United States because of the threat of a new enemy offensive.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials are known to feel the enemy will try to make good on warnings of new and more intensive attacks in South Vietnam.

A U.S. military spokesman reported Marines killed 201 North Vietnamese in two battles Sunday and one last Friday.

All the fighting centered around Gio Linh, an allied combat base near the eastern end of the demilitarized zone and about three miles south of the zone.

Backed by planes, artillery and tanks, the Marines reported they killed 67 North Vietnamese in the Sunday fighting. Marine losses were given as five killed and 17 wounded.

Fighting near Gio Linh raged all day Friday and the Marines said they killed 134 North Vietnamese while taking losses of five dead and 64 wounded.

Planes and Navy ships have been pounding the northern three miles of the zone, where the North Vietnamese are dug in, and communications leading down from the north in an effort to check the flow of men and weapons.

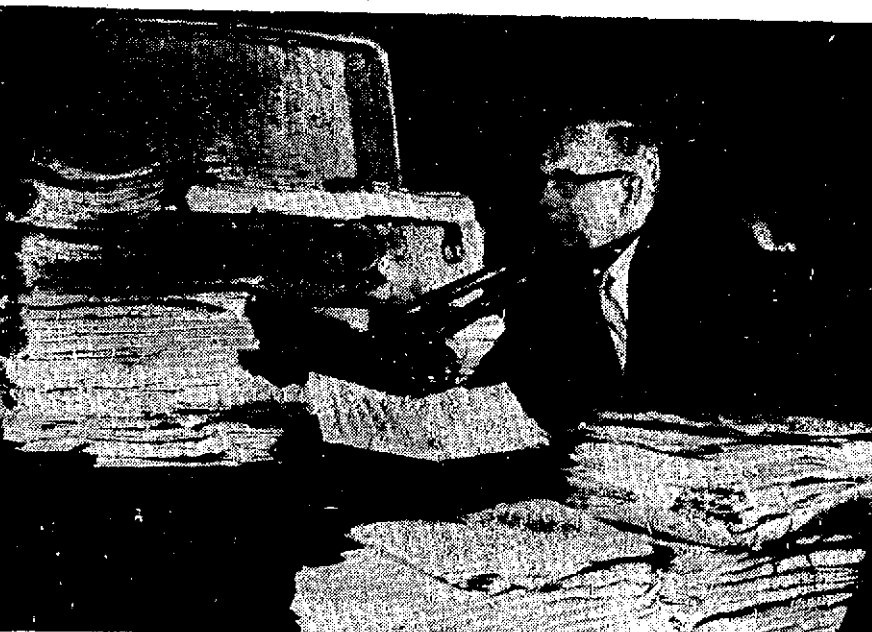

There was little action elsewhere except around Saigon, where South Vietnamese troops launched another of the sweeps that officers believe have been a factor in stalling off new enemy attacks on Saigon.

Striking 25 miles northwest of Saigon, the South Vietnamese uncovered a weapons cache containing a bazooka-type rocket launcher, 130 pounds of rockets, ammunition and claymore mines.

In the air war, U.S. planes flew 133 missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Sunday through antiaircraft fire that was described as heavy over some targets. No plane losses were reported.

Holiday traffic toll hit 619

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Traffic accidents during the four-day celebration of Independence Day killed 619 men, women and children. This compared with 559 deaths in a non-holiday weekend of equal length.

The toll fell short of the National Safety Council's advance estimate that 700 to 800 Americans might lose their lives on streets and highways during the period that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The council Monday termed the lower-than-expected toll a significant gain in traffic safety.

Strike threatens convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley and a union chief conferred Monday in a new move toward ending a strike that has prevented the installation of communications equipment for the Democratic National Convention, for months a target of threatened trouble.

They reached no agreement. But the labor leader estimated it would take only 30 days to set up facilities for the convention, scheduled to open in 49 days. He also said he is "very hopeful" the strike will be settled soon.

James W. Cook, president of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., told newsmen Friday that installers would have to get into the International Amphitheatre, site of the nominating sessions, Monday if they were to put in all the equipment needed.

Aug. 26 is the opening day of the convention.

Daley, in his fourth attempt to mediate the dispute, talked for an hour with Robert A. Niskey, chairman of Systems Council T-4, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The union of installation and repair specialists struck the telephone company May 8.

Niskey told reporters after the conference that they have been "reviewing the current situation and the possibilities," but had not "resolved the basic issues yet."

He also said that, if the strike ends, more workers are put on the project and they work around the clock, they could complete installations in 30 days or less. But a company spokesman said "work should start shortly or we never will finish on time."

No definite date was set for further conferences.

Bell supervisory personnel have been handling the strikers' chores. But the company fears that, if the supervisory personnel try to install extra telephone, teletype and television equipment, picket lines would keep other craftsmen out of the amphitheatre. Carpenters, painters and other tradesmen are needed to get the big hall in shape.

The union is asking a wage increase of $19.50 a week for the first year of a new contract, plus $10 a week for the remaining six months of the current contract. The company has offered $26 over three years. Top rated workers now get $160.50 a week.

The dispute recently has prompted speculation that the convention might be shifted to some other city. But Democratic leaders have asserted it will stay in Chicago.

The details still must be worked out and the package tied up with overseas holders of Britain's currency, especially in the British Commonwealth and in the oil sheikdoms of the Middle East.

The Bank of England said in a statement that the central banks of the 12 countries "have given firm assurances of willingness to participate in the arrangements."

The $2 billion figure was given by Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, in an airport interview upon returning from Basel, Switzerland, where the plan was organized at a weekend meeting in the Bank for International Settlements.

The announcement gave an immediate boost to Britain's pound, ailing because of fears it was heading for the fourth crisis in as many years. Now this seems unlikely. The rate shot up more than half a cent—the best one-day gain in memory—to $2.3895.

Fears of another crisis underlay the speed with which the bankers worked. Negotiations had been under way for months, but when France's economy trembled after this spring's student unrest and worker strikes, the pound trembled with it.

Nations pledge 2 billion to steady English pound

LONDON (AP) — Britain disclosed Monday promises of massive international help to start dropping another of its overseas burdens—its role as a banker to the world.

Twelve nations agreed to guarantee a standby credit of up to $2 billion for about 10 years to protect the British pound during the transition and to prevent another devaluation that might wreck the international monetary system.

The details still must be worked out and the package tied up with overseas holders of Britain's currency, especially in the British Commonwealth and in the oil sheikdoms of the Middle East.

The Bank of England said in a statement that the central banks of the 12 countries "have given firm assurances of willingness to participate in the arrangements."

The $2 billion figure was given by Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, in an airport interview upon returning from Basel, Switzerland, where the plan was organized at a weekend meeting in the Bank for International Settlements.

The announcement gave an immediate boost to Britain's pound, ailing because of fears it was heading for the fourth crisis in as many years. Now this seems unlikely. The rate shot up more than half a cent—the best one-day gain in memory—to $2.3895.

Fears of another crisis underlay the speed with which the bankers worked. Negotiations had been under way for months, but when France's economy trembled after this spring's student unrest and worker strikes, the pound trembled with it.

The French said they could not join in the plan "in the present circumstances," an allusion to France's own economic troubles. The Bank of France said it was in sympathy with the idea.

But in London this was not seen as any indication that President Charles de Gaulle had dropped his campaign against the world's two reserve currencies, the pound and the U.S. dollar.

Joining in the support plan were Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

It was as much to their advantage as Britain's to arrange the new plan. By easing a withdrawal from British pounds to their currencies, they attract trade, while they are propping the financial system that underwrites foreign trade.

Both O'Brien and Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins agreed that this would mean a change in Britain's banking role. Jenkins also saw it as a major step in dealing with the vexing role of what are called the sterling balances—pounds owed to other nations. These have enabled Britain to act as a banker but intensified every economic crisis since World War II.

In last November's devaluation Commonwealth governments watched helplessly as the value of their money in London was cut overnight by 14 per cent.

The new credits of $2 billion would cover about one-third of the sterling banked in London by foreigners. In effect it is an insurance policy. The overseas depositors know that there is less risk to their money and therefore they are less likely to withdraw it.

For the British, the credits represent a guarantee that they can pay up on demand. Instead of Britain being forced to pay in foreign currency right away, the 12 countries would lend the British the foreign exchange as needed.

Accepts invitation from Democrat

Shafer will discuss gun bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman said Monday Gov. Shafer has accepted his invitation to begin joint discussions on a mutually acceptable gun control bill.

Fineman, a Philadelphia Democrat, said he expected the negotiations to begin as soon as Shafer designates an aide to represent him.

Fineman said he would assign Gerald Goldberg, his assistant research counsel, to the task.

The invitation for joint talks was extended by Fineman in a letter to the chief executive in which he noted both had introduced differing gun control bills.

Fineman wrote: "At this point, we both seek the same ultimate objective differing only in our means ... I honestly believe that if we were to join forces in vigorously pushing for the identical piece of legislation, we could conceivably have this legislation enacted even though it will be hotly contested and will continue to remain very controversial."

Fineman's bill would require all gun purchases or sales transactions to be registered with the proper authorities. Shafer's bill would register people by requiring all gun owners to receive a state police permit.

Fineman stressed the urgency for speedy discussions, noting that the General Assembly is contemplating a summer break through August within the next two or three weeks.

Traffic commissioner seeks cabinet status for department

HARRISBURG (AP) — Traffic Safety Commissioner Harry K. Brainerd told a Senate Committee on Highway Safety Monday that his bureau could perform more efficiently were it removed from the Department of Revenue.

Strike worries farmers

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—Gov. Richard J. Hughes was asked Monday to use his good offices to help avert an impending nation-wide strike against the Campbell Soup Co. at tomato harvest time.

New Jersey tomato growers urged Hughes and other state officials to contact both sides in the labor dispute immediately to help "prevent this catastrophe to New Jersey agriculture and to the economy of South Jersey, including the welfare of hundreds of migrant workers."

Arthur H. West, president of the New Jersey Farm Bureau, said he had been informed by officials of Local 80-A of the United Packinghouse, Food and Allied Workers, AFL-CIO, Camden, that a nationwide strike of Campbell plant workers is imminent, unless the unions involved and the company can reach agreement on a new contract. He said the unions had stated an intention to strike as soon as the first tomatoes reach Campbell plants across the country.

"We expect our New Jersey tomatoes to start ripening around July 22," West said. "Some 200 of our growers have about $5 million tied up in tomatoes contracted to Campbell Soup Co.; but the company has no responsibility to pay for them until they are delivered and accepted at the plant."

Testifying before the five-member senatorial panel in the third public hearing of a series dealing with traffic safety, Brainerd said his department has "too long remained in a department that is unrelated to traffic safety work."

He pointed to the necessity for a cabinet-level post responsible for traffic safety. On this matter he won agreement from the committee chairman, Sen. Clarence Manbeck, R-Lebanon, who said legislation creating such a cabinet office would be forthcoming.

In his testimony, Brainerd cited an insufficiency in the reporting of accidents on a statewide basis. Accident reporting, he said, should be "stepped up" and made more comprehensive so that corrective measures can be introduced.

"Speed faster than the conditions warrant" is the major cause of accidents, Brainerd told the committee.

And yet, the commissioner said, speed limits on some major arteries are either too stringent or simply inaccurate for conditions. He stressed the importance of a section in the motor vehicle code which permits the commissioner of traffic safety to set a new speed limit on any highway to fit existing conditions.

He asked the senate committee, however, to introduce legislation which would include this provision under the state point system for driving infractions. Currently, a driver who exceeds the temporary speed limit set by the commissioner is not assessed points for his action but simply charged with a violation.

Another aspect of the motor vehicle code which Brainerd said should be examined is the need for "special licenses. Present rules enable anyone bearing a Pennsylvania Driver's license to operate any variety of vehicle."

Explaining the need for a breakdown in licensing, Brainerd said: "I've often said that I love my wife dearly, but she is not qualified to drive a tractor-trailer."

Greene-Dreher Watershed

5 of 13 Pike-Wayne flood dams finished

MILFORD — In a slow and tedious process, but without any controversial echoes of objections, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service is continuing its multi-million project for constructing 13 flood control dams in the Greene-Dreher Watershed.

There are already five small flood control dams in the 47,810 acre watershed which includes Monroe, Pike and Wayne counties.

$2.8 million project
The flood control project in the watershed, which began May, 1959, originally called for construction of a total 16 small dams at an estimated cost of $2,899,758.

George Collier, work unit conservationist in Pike and Wayne counties, said Monday that the cost estimates are based on 1959 figures.

Collier explained that the Soil Conservation Service studied the area following the fatal 1955 flood to determine possibilities of preventing another such flood.

The result was a recommendation for construction of 24 dams in three separate watershed areas. These include the 13 dams in the Greene-Dreher Watershed; four in the Upper Brodhead Watershed in Monroe County and seven in the Lackawaxen Watershed of Wayne County.

Completed dams
Six of the seven dams in the Lackawaxen Watershed are already complete.

This leaves Monroe County as being the only county which has not initiated any flood control dam construction since the Soil Conservation Service recommendations were made.

The Monroe County Commissioners recently decided to go ahead with construction of three dams on the Upper Brodhead Creek.

The 13 dams within the Greene-Dreher Watershed however, were originally scheduled to be complete within a five year period, Collier said.

Three dams are currently complete in Wayne County and two are completed in Pike County. The sixth dam will be constructed near Greentown in Pike County. The commissioners are scheduled to open bids on this dam construction August 19.

Monroe County previously has had difficulty in obtaining easements for construction of the dams when the previous County Commissioners negotiated with landowners.

Young Hawley man injured in car crash on Rt. 507

MILFORD — State Police from Milford Sunday at 11 p.m. investigated a one-car accident on Rt. 507 that injured a 21-year-old man from Hawley.

Willard MacLeary of Hawley was taken to Memorial Hospital in Honesdale where he was treated and released, police said.

A spokesman for the hospital said the man was not admitted and had no knowledge of the accident.

According to police, MacLeary was traveling south when he apparently fell asleep, ran off the highway, and rolled down a bank.

The car came to rest at the bottom of the embankment on its wheels.

Total damage is estimated by police at $300.

Stroud Township must grow with care

Stroud Township reflected its rapid growth once again last week when it accepted four new streets to be cared for by the supervisors in future years.

This township is undoubtedly the fastest growing municipality in Monroe County and its growth must be carefully supervised and its guidance must be controlled with the brain as well as heart.

Stroud Township is in the position of doing much of the growing for both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, as the two boroughs find their growth limited because of geographic location at this time, especially Stroudsburg.

A great deal of care must be exercised by the supervisors, George M. Hallet, Harold E. Albert and James A. Somers Jr., in the future growth of Stroud Township.

The future undoubtedly calls for large residential sections and ever growing industrial locations. Planning and zoning must be carried out to the letter of perfection if shortcomings from previous lack of planning is to be overcome and future growth is to be conducted without trouble.

Planning and zoning are extremely important to Stroud Township, an attractive area to both industrial and residential interests. It has the space to grow and the natural attractions to all types of individuals and businesses thinking of locating in the Pocono Mountains.

The growth in this area has been rapid in recent years and may be even faster in the future. With this thought in mind we ask all those working in planning and zoning to do the job right.

We ask everyone to forget selfish interests and to work for the good of the township. We request all the cooperation possible be directed toward the supervisors, who face a difficult task.

The physical expansion in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area is toward Stroud Township — so also let the thinking be expanded toward a bright and successful future.

Mafia in Pennsylvania?

Is or isn't Pennsylvania a stronghold of the Mafia? J. Shane Creamer, a deputy attorney general and director of the state Crime Commission boldly asserts that it is. If he is right, then Pennsylvanians have reason to be concerned.

Creamer's sensational charge so far as we know is not supported by anyone who is in position to analyze crime conditions in the state. He must depend as head of the Crime Commission on the reports of only three investigators. The New York commission has 300.

There is no question that his statement tends to give the state a black eye. Most industrial executives would hesitate to establish new plants in an area which is subject to the power of a huge criminal ring.

The same goes for professional and business people who consider locating in the commonwealth. Most certainly these persons would be deeply concerned by the assertion that there are 200 Mafia bigwigs in the state and that some of them are highly respected and prominent in their communities.

Puzzling is the failure of the Shafer Administration to take action assuming that there is foundation and substance to the declarations of Creamer.

Why have not the attorney general and the state police taken positive action? Either Creamer knows what he is talking about or he has been grossly misled. Gov. Shafer is obligated to uncover the facts and make them public.

First day sale

By RAY PATTON

The five-cent postcard for the Women Marines 25th anniversary will have first day sale July 26th at San Francisco, Calif. The 12-cent regular in the Prominent American Series will feature Henry Ford, and be released July 30 at Greenfield Village, Mich.

Some collectors get confused between a stamp that is overprinted and one that is surcharged. The difference is that overprints are stamps that have been printed over after having been printed for some special event (like the United States Hawaii overprints).

A surcharged stamp is one showing a change in the value and, this can be either up or down. (Like the Canadian seven-cent air mail that was surcharged to eight cents.

The seven was crossed out and the eight printed over it). Another item is the semi-postal stamps. These stamps are issued by many European countries but none in the United States or Canada. You will find on these issues two values (like 10 plus five) and this means the cost of the stamp would be 15 cents but only the first value is good for postage (10).

Club News

The board of directors of the Pocono Mountains Stamp Club will meet Monday, July 15, at 8 p.m., to plan the year's program and the ninth annual exhibit.

DeGaulle faces toughest test

WASHINGTON — President Charles de Gaulle's toughest test is still ahead of him—and he is ill-equipped to meet it.

After a month of fierce student rioting and paralyzing strikes, the French people are giving General de Gaulle the parliamentary power to redeem his tardy promises.

He has promised to carry out sweeping reforms in the educational and economic system of France—reforms which were never even talked about by the Gaullist government until it was nearly toppled by violence. There isn't the faintest evidence that de Gaulle has thought through what he proposes to do or how he proposes to do it.

The need for restructuring, reforming, and revitalizing both French education and French industry couldn't be more crucial. Each contributes to the anemia of the other.

Consider the paucity of French education. In the U.S. there are 1,400 four-year universities with the most varied courses leading to almost any chosen career. In France, with 26 percent as many people, there are only 50 such institutions with a narrow range of studies.

There are seven million students in American universities. With one quarter the population, there are only 700,000 students in French universities.

In the United States universities there are 900 courses leading to degrees in business administration. In French universities there are only three or four such courses and only a few hundred business graduates a year.

Basic weakness

Key statistics show the basic weakness of French industry. The gross national product in the United States per person and on the basis of comparable prices is two to three times greater than in France. This comes from inefficient management, inadequate technology, and low productivity per worker.

France's human and natural resources are being grossly under-utilized and until French management is brought into the second half of the 20th century France's industrial plight cannot be corrected.

France continues to educate classical scholars for jobs that don't exist and French industry is employing classical students for management jobs they can't perform.

French management knows what's happening; the nation's annual growth rate is down from 7 percent in the early '60s to 3.5 percent today. French workers know what's happening; they are widely underpaid. French investors know what's happening; they avoid new stock issues and loans to firms under French management and turn to firms under American direction.

Next to nothing

For a decade de Gaulle has done next to nothing to deal with the fundamental causes of his nation's economic anemia and educational irrelevance. In the face of the riots and the strikes he said he had been planning to "revolutionize" both industry and education and had only been waiting on public support. He's got it now—with a vengeance.

As to what he will do, he has been carefully vague and when less than vague he has left many qualified people with the impression that his grasp of economic issues begins and ends with the opening chapter of an outdated high school textbook.

His stated premise is that "both communism and capitalism are evil forms of society" and if he travels that road he is likely to end up with the worst of both.

France's problem is that it has never had a really enterprising, competitive private capitalism. It is suffering from anemic 18th-century capitalism and anemic 19th-century socialism; the French government itself spends more than half the nation's gross national product.

DeGaulle has now been given a mandate to do what is needed. For the good of the free world we must hope he can succeed.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

ROUGHNECK

A rude, rowdy person often is called a "roughneck." The term originated in Colonial America.

On the eastern seaboard, which was settled first, large estates were established and towns and cities were built. The landed class brought many of the European fashions to the new colonies, including the practice of tying one's hair into a queue and keeping it trimmed and powdered.

The frontiersmen, who pushed westward, generally let their hair hang roughly on their necks. People in the eastern settlements called such a person a "roughneck." A frontiersman was looked upon as comparatively rude and rough, therefore, the name "roughneck" acquired this meaning.

Letters to THE EDITOR

Questions to be answered

Editor, The Record

Recently there has been great controversy over the reappearing topic of gun legislation, and a cry of anguish has been heard throughout the land. For example:

"Because of a few lamebrains in Washington who are too lazy to hunt or exert themselves in anyway except to draw their pay, all gun owners are to suffer."

(Letter to the Editor, June 29, 1968)

Such protests give birth to pertinent questions on gun legislation:

1. Why is the registration of a gun a greater invasion of "privacy of the home" than the registration of a car, dog, marriage, birth, or income?

2. Do the protests indicate that the registration of a gun means one is forbidden the use of a gun for hunting game? Or

3. Do they indicate rationalizations necessary to suppress feelings of guilt? Fear? Why?

4. Is the anti-gun control individual less concerned about the percentage of success in regard to death by gun fire than he is about identifying himself as the owner of a gun? Why?

5. Is the statement that communists will break down our doors and take over our country the moment guns are registered based on historical precedent or upon belief that our national guard is ineffective or upon lack of confidence in our military?

6. Do those against gun controls believe there is less danger of foreign invasion and conquest when assassins are given free access to guns? Or:

7. Do they feel that once the more responsible leaders in America are gone, the hunter with his unregistered gun will then become our "protector"?

8. Can the local citizenry with its unregistered guns, although frightening the communists from our doors, be effective "protectors" in a 20th century democracy?

9. Is there a difference between liberty and license?

Enjoyed Festival opening

Editor, The Record.

I just want to let you know how much I and my friends enjoyed the opening of the Pocono Music Festival at Mountainhome.

We have heard and admired the Curtis String Quartet (what masters!) with their artistry again at the lovely Onawa setting.

Here's hoping the successful opening of the Pocono Music Festival signals a long, highly artistic life for not only the residents of the Poconos but also for the summer visitors.

The Festival's a great asset to the area.

Harris survey

LBJ key to McCarthy's chances in Democratic nomination bid

By Louis Harris

The strength and the weakness of the candidacy of Sen. Eugene McCarthy have far more to do with a man not in the race at all—President Johnson—than with either the Minnesota senator or his chief rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

Sen. McCarthy is widely hailed by 75 per cent of the electorate for the courage of his decision to oppose Johnson "when no one else would." To an almost equally high 72 per cent of all voters, McCarthy's course has proved he is "an independent-minded man." By 52 to 19 per cent, voters say they have "high confidence" in his capability of running the office of president.

But being the symbol of anti-Johnson sentiment in the Democratic Party today is also bedeviling McCarthy in his bid to obtain his party's nomination.

At the moment, only a minority of the electorate as a whole, 45 per cent, gives Johnson positive marks on his handling of his office. This is up seven points from the president's low of 38 per cent positive in March and down 13 points from his recent high of 57 per cent in April, just after he said he would not run again.

Positive rating

Among Democratic Party voters, President Johnson has a 55 per cent positive rating; he is most unpopular outside his party. McCarthy must win the Democratic nomination, however, from delegates far more likely to be reflective of the sentiment within rather than outside their party.

It comes as no surprise that Humphrey is the preferred choice of pro-Johnson Democrats by 59 to 39 per cent and that McCarthy wins over the vice president by 54 to 33 per cent among anti-Johnson Democrats. But because more Democrats are favorable than unfavorable to the President, Humphrey holds a 48 to 40 per cent edge in party ranks.

In a very real sense, therefore, whether McCarthy can catch Humphrey in popularity among rank-and-file Democrats before that party's national convention on Aug. 26 in Chicago depends in large measure on Lyndon Johnson's standing in his own party during the next six weeks.

There has been much talk about what would happen to the pro-McCarthy vote this fall if Humphrey is nominated in Chicago next month. But the opposite side of the coin has not been explored: what would happen to the pro-Johnson and pro-Humphrey support if McCarthy is the nominee of the Democrats?

Running well

Up to now, McCarthy has been running well in the polls with a combined backing of his own young and affluent vote and the essential base of the lower-income and ethnic groups which make up the Democratic Party.

In the latest trial heats, McCarthy was running eight points ahead of Richard Nixon, 44 to 36 per cent with 12 per cent for George Wallace and eight percent undecided. An analysis of the McCarthy vote reveals that his likely supporters break down 55-45 per cent favorable to Johnson. The Nixon vote is 62 to 38 per cent anti-Johnson. The Wallace vote is 76 to 24 per cent anti-Johnson.

Put another way, in an election situation, the anti-Johnson vote today would break 58 per cent for Nixon or Wallace and only 34 per cent for McCarthy. By contrast, the pro-Johnson vote would divide 53 per cent for McCarthy and only 38 per cent for Nixon and Wallace combined.

Up to now, McCarthy is receiving a large measure of the pro-Johnson vote. After a bitter convention in which he stopped Humphrey, it might be quite another story.

In campaign terms, McCarthy might find himself, if nominated, in the strange position of either muting his chief position—opposition to Lyndon Johnson—or facing the risk of possibly losing major components of the Democratic coalition over which he would preside. The last Democratic candidate for president who rebuffed an incumbent Democratic President was Adlai Stevenson in 1952. Stevenson lost.

Here is the way the fall election would divide according to people's views about the overall job President Johnson is doing:

MCCARTHY-NIXON-WALLACE RACE BY L.B.J. JOB RATING RATE L.B.J.

| Voting for: | Positive Negative |          |
|-------------|-------------------|----------|
|             | Per Cent          | Per Cent |
| McCarthy    | 53                | 36       |
| Nixon       | 31                | 41       |
| Wallace     | 7                 | 17       |
| Not sure    | 9                 | 6        |

But before he gets to the problem of how to cope with an incumbent Democratic President he has opposed, McCarthy would have to find a way out of the dilemma he now faces among his own party's rank and file:

HUMPHREY VS. MCCARTHY AMONG DEMOCRATS BY L.B.J. RATING RATE L.B.J.

| Prefer:  | Positive Negative |          |
|----------|-------------------|----------|
|          | (56)              | (44)     |
| Per Cent | Per Cent          |          |
|          | Per Cent          | Per Cent |
| Humphrey | 59                | 33       |
| McCarthy | 30                | 54       |
| Not sure | 11                | 13       |

Put into cold numbers, with this kind of division, President Johnson's popularity with his own party's rank and file must fall at least 10 more points in the next six weeks to make McCarthy the preferred choice of Democrats in this country.

Progress in Paris

WASHINGTON — I can't tell you how excited everyone here is over recent developments at the Paris peace talks. As you probably know, our negotiators are very encouraged over the fact Hanoi's team has agreed to at least one of our proposals — a longer coffee break at every session!

If there's one thing this town understands and appreciates it is the coffee break. To hear superclerks and lesser Federal employees tell it, some of the great breakthroughs in bureaucracy have been developed during the mid-morning and mid-afternoon periods when government employees take a brief respite from their arduous duties.

While it is the State Department which has interpreted Hanoi's willingness to relax with our guys around the coffee urn as a positive sign something fruitful may come of the discussions, it occurs to me that — at this point — the Civil Service Commission might better know what it all means.

Fortunately, I have a friend there who was delighted to put the Great Coffee Break Agreement into perspective for me. (He'd rather I didn't use his name, since he is a GS-8, bucking GS-10, and he hasn't got more publicity than his boss.)

One good point

"Believe me," he said, "any country, be it Communist or vegetarian, can't be all bad if it goes along with longer coffee breaks. That is the keystone of Western civilization and if East and West can agree on something as basic as that, surely we can end our trifling disagreements in Vietnam.

"Next, of course, we must move them another step along, into the world of the three-martini, two-hour executive lunch. At that point, don't you see, Washington's and Hanoi's negotiators will be spending more time together socially than they are over the conference table.

"Then, it shouldn't be too difficult to get them to agree to leaving early, for cocktails after work. This should be followed up quickly with a joint resolution calling for 30 days annual leave and 15 days sick leave for each negotiator every year.

"Eventually, I see us getting together for an annual Negotiators' Spring Outing and, of course, the Negotiators' Christmas Party. And by then, of course, diplomats on both sides will be riding to and from the conferences together in car pools. Yes, I'd say the coffee break thing is promising."

"But," I said, "isn't it possible the negotiators' days will be so pleasant in Paris they'll never want to end the peace talks?"

"Sorry, got to go now. It's time for my coffee break."

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Children in hospitals

IT HAS taken hospital administrators many years to catch up with the knowledge of psychiatrists, psychologists, and sociologists. Hospitals finally seem to be conceding to this relentless pressure and the will of parents who insist that they want to stay overnight with their children on whom surgery is planned.

It is a remarkable phenomenon, well known to sociologists, that poor, underprivileged people in developing countries simply refuse to leave their children alone at a time when the child needs them most. People in higher intellectual and financial levels seem to be afraid to stand up to hospital administrators and to doctors who insist that "The child is better off without the parent."

Children up to the age of six, for example, have been completely protected and made secure by the limitations imposed on them by their parents. "Wear this." "Cover yourself." "Don't cross the streets." "Don't stand near the window." "Wear your rubbers." and a thousand modifications of these instructions of love allow a child to believe he can depend on his parents for security and protection.

Now comes his first hospital experience for the removal of his tonsils, the repair of a hernia, an appendectomy, or perhaps surgery for cross-eyes. Parents who have surrounded children with constant devotion are too often "conned" into leaving their children alone, thus seeming to abandon them at the time they are needed most.

Dr. Bertram Goslimer, a New York psychoanalyst, astutely said, "The child who is better off without his parents at this time, may always be better off without his parents." He added, "For, of all times in a child's life, this is the one time that a child needs his parents most."

This becomes more apparent when one realizes that the chances are more than 300 to one that the next time a six-year-old girl will be admitted to a hospital will be when she is about to give birth to her first child. Does this highlight the importance of maintaining the security of the child and avoiding giving her the feeling that she has been forsaken by her parents when she needed them most?

Ann Landers

Degree of satisfaction

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in your reply to the mother whose six-year-old insisted on dragging her faded, worn-out blanket everywhere. You said, "Leave her alone. She'll give it up when she's ready. I've never heard of a child taking a baby blanket on a honeymoon." Well, Ann, stick around for a few more years and you might hear of it. Our son Johnny is 15. His baby blanket fell apart years ago (he dragged it around until there was nothing left). Then he developed a dandy substitute. Johnny twists the corners of his bedsheets into sharp little peaks and of course the sheets wear out in no time at all.

I am not complaining because apparently this twisting has filled an emotional need. Johnny has always been a wonderful son, a fine student, mechanically inclined and good in athletics. He is a thoughtful boy and never caused us any trouble. Perhaps letting him drag his blanket all those years and now twisting the sheets have given him the satisfaction other kids find in drag racing and breaking the law for "kicks."

If, when Johnny marries, he wants a baby blanket to take on his honeymoon, I'll buy him one.

WOULDN'T TRADE

Dear Wouldn't: Your insight and wisdom have paid off. I wish more parents had it. Too often children are nagged about trivial things which should be ignored—like dragging blankets around and twisting sheets.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column on free love is additional proof that you always side with the women. Here's how it looks from a male point of view.

I am 30 years of age, a confirmed bachelor who never once mentioned marriage to a woman. I've had 32 affairs in the last three years and four turn-downs. I'm not handsome, not rich, not a great talker and I never made an active pitch in my life. My record of conquests is proof that American women are the most aggressive, sex-hungry females in the world. When I lived in Europe I didn't get one-third the propositions I get in California.

Now what do you say?

TRANSATLANTIC

Dear Trans: I say horsefeathers. If you never made a pitch in your life, how come the turn-downs? Your record proves only one thing — any dame can have an affair if she sets her standards low enough.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the legal secretary who refused to notarize papers unless she had seen the parties sign.

Good for her. I, too, am inflexible in this regard—so inflexible, in fact, that I've been referred to as "that screwball." But it paid off.

Recently we handled a deed. I notarized the signatures of all five heirs. A lawyer of questionable character stated that all five signatures had been affixed by one person. He even lined up a phony handwriting "expert" to support his charges. The fool was laughed out of sight. Several witnesses said, "That screwball would never notarize a signature she didn't witness with her own eyes"—and that ended it.

UTICA, N.Y.

Dear U: How refreshing to find someone who sticks to the rules even in the face of ridicule. There is so much compromising, bending and breaking these days, I doff my bonnet to you for setting a fine example.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Two vehicles in accident on Rt. 611

MOUNT POCONO — State Police at Mount Pocono investigated a two-car accident Friday at 9:25 p.m. on Rt. 611.

The drivers were Francis Martens, 54, of Bronx, N.Y., and Bessie Clifford, 45, of Brockton, Mass., who complained of pain in the back.

According to police, the Clifford car had stopped as it was traveling south on Rt. 611 to allow a car in front to make a turn.

The Martens car was also traveling south and could not stop in time to prevent hitting the Clifford vehicle. The Martens car went into the medial strip and then came back on the highway and collided with the Clifford car.

Total damage is estimated by police at $300.

New York's Voice of Broadway

Mike Love of "The Beach Boys" had to rush on stage in Westchester and beg the sparse crowd to quit cal-calling Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, who "co-starred" the one-nighter; the Beach Boys promoted the concert (and the one at the Singer Bowl which attracted just a handful) and lost $3,500... The Steinway on which George Gershwin wrote both the "Rhapsody in Blue" and "Porgy and Bess" is part of the highly acclaimed Gershwin exhibit at the Museum of the City of N.Y. (It runs until Sept. 2.)

At Gourmet-heaven Chauveron, Hildegard and Hope Hampton wore identical tiaras (of flowers)... Maurice Chevalier is hardly an Old square: he bought a turtleneck shirt and white golf jacket at Ohrbach's while hundreds cheered... New York Civil Service employees with long tenure are up in anti-Lindsay arms over the city pension plot to expropriate the extra money they've poured into the pension system for many years and getting back only as much as those who've put in lots less... Lee Evans' orchestra starts its fifth year at the Americana's Royal Box; Lee's played five times for LBJ at the White House in two years.

Richard Kiley is credited by Diahann Carroll for her success in "No Strings," in which she says the fine singing actor "literally worked with me every waking hour before we opened to perfect the characters and make the love scenes believably alive"... Hmmm!

Norman Wisdom (the superb little halpint you'll see soon in "The Night They Raided Minsky's") packed 60,000 into a British stadium with no mikes!... To standing room!

The Troy Donahues split but aren't seeing lawyers yet... Under severe investigation—suburban New York catering spots; the biggest Boys' had to rush on stage in mizvahs — reservations must be made a year in advance.

Bob Hope admitted himself he was far over-estimated in Fortune Mag's list of top millionaires... Bing Crosby much more quietly has more moo-lah... From longtime observation of the showbiz Croesus collection, we'd call them like this: Bing, Morton Downey (who was a millionaire at 30), Bob Hope, Hollywood director Clarence Brown, ditto director George Cukor, Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray, Joel McCrea; all "true millionaires," meaning incomes of more than $1,000,000 a year... Not just a paltry million in the sock.

Once Hollywood black-listed, Jules Dassin, better known as Melina Mercouri's husband, plays an all-Black version of "The Informer"...

USC all-American back O.J. Simpson signed for the TV special "A Night With Mae West"... Maybe it's accidental but an ad for the Dime Saving Bank strikes onlookers as quite erotic: a boy and gal in the bushes... "Where Were You When The Lights Went Out" indeed shifts Doris Day's film image: she'll be pregnant in it... Wendy Barrie's 78-year-old mother is a good old bunny with a nice sense of silliness: her birthday cable to Wendy was, "Oh, those labor pains!"... Coco Chanel's casuistry in McCall's: "Lie if you must, but never in detail, or to yourself."

Darryl Zanuck did so splendidly with "The Longest Day" (it saved 20th-Fox from sinking in red ink with Cleopatra's barge and put him in the 20th-Fox presidency) has inspired a whole pattern of little cinematic wars marshaled by Darryl: Gen. Patton's film biog "Blood 'n' Guts" (Battle of the Bulge); "Tora! Tora! Tora!" (the U.S. - Jap War); "John Brown's Body" (the Civil War) and "A Walk With Love and Death" (the 100 Years' War)... The Coast Guard fears too many boat and yacht tragedies this small-ship season, greatest ever... Big suburban New York stores are installing the thickest steel-mesh roller gates (spending $22,000 and up) for the feared summer uprisings.

First thing foreign visitors want to see in New York this season are "Les Hippies," and seem to know all about Greenwich Village and East Village unkempt havens... Lesbian scenes in "Therese and Isabelle" will make the lesbobits in "The Fox" seem like Nancy Drews.

It's Lucy Johnson Nugent who is the Catholic in the LBJ family but Ed McMahon coaxed Lynda Bird to be national chairman of the September 16 Capitol Theatre benefit for Catholic University's new $3,000,000 Communications Centre; that will be the last show ever in the huge Capitol Theatre on Broadway before it gets torn down to make way for a skyscraper.

Next screen sexpot being touted is Tisha Sterling, in "The Name of the Game is Kill" (Tisha is the daughter of Ann Sothern and Robert Sterling; and she is a beauty)... Don Rickles' "style" at the Troupers' big salute to Joey Bishop at the Latin Quarter was too smutty even for a bawling Broadway night club.

HOW SAFE IS OIL HEAT?

IT'S SO SAFE YOU COULD DROP A MATCH INTO A GLASS OF HEATING OIL AND THE OIL WOULD EXTINGUISH THE FLAME. HEAT IS CREATED IN THE BURNER UNIT—WHEN THE OIL IS VAPORIZED.

THE SOURCE OF GAS HEAT IS A GAS—AND IT'S EXPLOSIVE. MODERN PIPELINES AND HEATING EQUIPMENT, HOWEVER, HAVE PRACTICALLY ELIMINATED THE DANGERS INHERENT IN THIS FORM OF HEAT.

ELECTRIC HOME HEATING REQUIRES HIGH-RESISTANCE ELECTRICAL COILS TO GENERATE HEAT. WHERE WALL-BOARD COILS ARE USED, THE ELECTRIC UTILITY SUGGESTS THE SAME SAFEGUARDS YOU WOULD USE WITH THE ELECTRIC PLUG-IN TYPE OF HEATER.

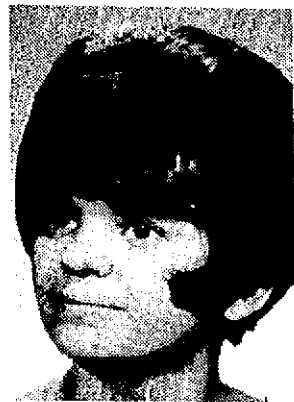

THUS, ALL MODERN HEATING SYSTEMS ARE INHERENTLY SAFE AS LONG AS THEY ARE HANDLED WITH GOOD "HORSE SENSE."

The bidding:

Pass 1♦ 1♥ 1♠

3♥ 3♠ 4♥ 4♠

Opening lead—four of hearts.

Most people play bridge because they find it to be a very relaxing and enjoyable game and because, somehow or other they manage to forget all their worries and cares while indulging in their favorite pastime.

However, you can't relax too much at the bridge table because, if you do, you wind up behind the eight ball in too many deals. You have to think at all times to secure the best possible result, and anyone who relaxes too much and starts to bid or play mechanically must surely pay the piper from time to time.

Here is a typical situation from a team of four match. At the first table, West led the four of hearts, East won with the king and returned a low club, South following low.

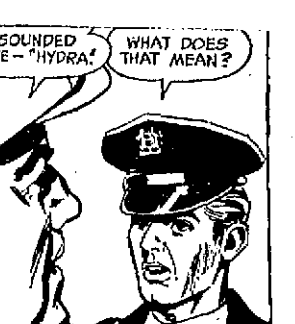

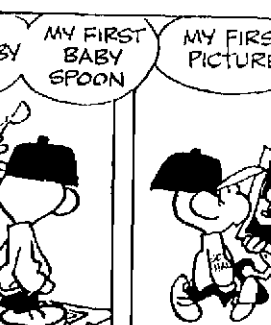

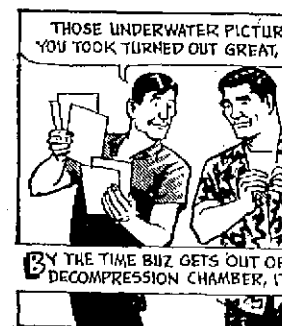

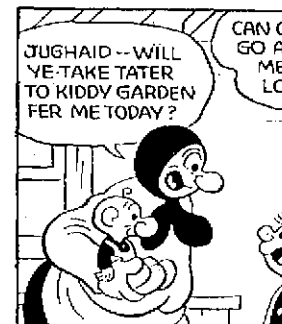

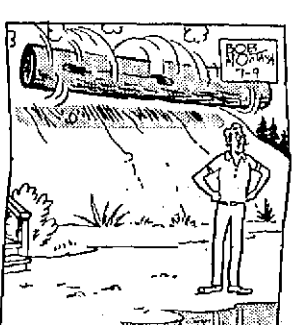

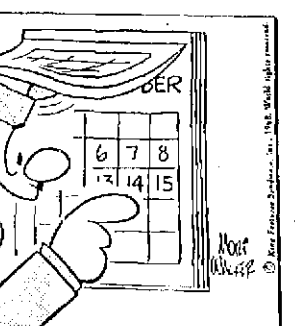

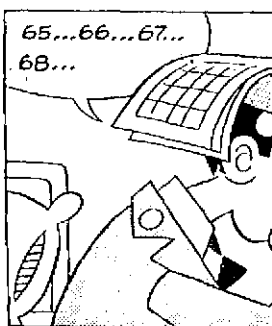

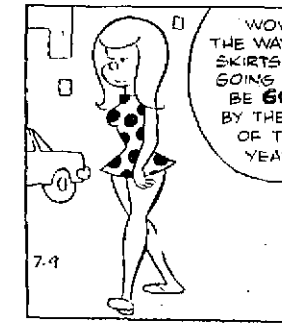

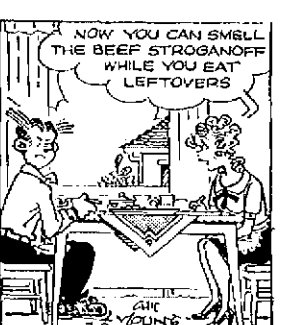

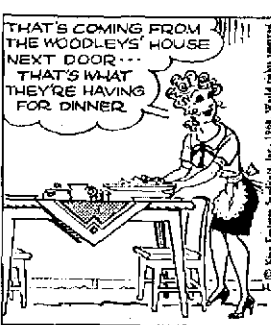

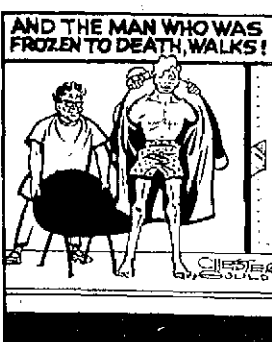

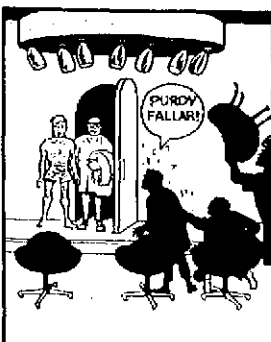

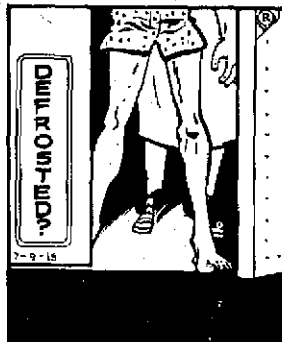

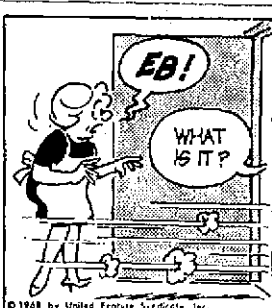

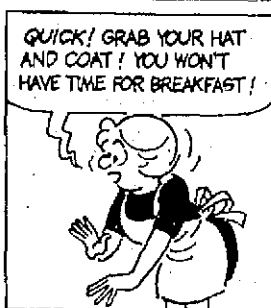

West won with the queen, cashed the ace, and shifted to a diamond. Declarer took East's jack with the king, ruffed a heart high, drew trumps, led a diamond to the queen, and discarded his jack of clubs on the ace of diamonds to make the contract.

Obviously, something went wrong with the defense, since East-West had started with three clubs and a heart — and wound up with three.

At the second table, the defense functioned much better and East-West defeated four spades. Here, also, East won the heart lead with the king and shifted to a low club.

But when declarer followed low, West did not make the mechanical play of the queen. West deduced from South's low club play that he was highly unlikely to have the king and that East therefore had it.

Accordingly, West won the club with the ace and continued with the queen. This made it easy for East to recognize that the A-Q of clubs, played in that order, indicated a doubleton. East overtook the queen with the king and returned a club to defeat the contract one trick.

Rt. 209 study still underway

MARSHALLS CREEK — Additional temporary signing and some temporary blinkers have been installed at the intersection of Rt. 209 and Business Rt. 209 here while the Pennsylvania Department of Highways continues its study, according to Karl Witherow, district engineer.

The dangerous intersection was the site of five accidents over a four day period, June 24 to 27.

Witherow said that areas for the placement of "ripple strips" are now being studied, but that it takes time to get material. "The situation can't be taken care of overnight," he said.

A highway department spokesman said Monday that Highway Secretary Robert C. Bartlett has requested additional state police patrols around the intersection from Col. Frank McKetta, state police commissioner.

However, state police at Stroudsburg said Monday night that they have no knowledge of such a request, nor do they have any such instructions from troop headquarters in Hazleton, requesting additional patrols.

Assessor's office to do work

County to reassess land values

STRODSBURG — A reevaluation of the tax structure of Monroe County was approved Monday by the County Commissioners. The cost is estimated at $50,000.

All three of the commissioners agreed that the reevaluation, to be done by the County Assessor's Office, would be superior to a reassessment by an outside firm which could cost $320,000.

The Commissioners' Tax Study Committee, which had presented both plans to the commissioners June 20, had also agreed that reevaluation was the more desirable plan.

The reevaluation will use land values according to use of the land and adjustment to cost of construction or improvements. Chairman Elwood Hintze termed the plan "an equalization." He said that some people will pay less taxes, and others more.

William Fetherman, chief assessor, had told the commissioners "We need revision in areas not even existing in 1957 (the date of the last reassessment)."

According to the report presented the commissioners June 20, in the county's present assessment system "uniformity is not in balance", market values for assessment purposes are not realistic, and "the system is not flexible enough to adjust to changing market values."

"Nothing has been done sufficiently on this subject in 11 years," said commissioner Nancy Shukaitis. She added that she was in favor of a reevaluation.

And Commissioner Arlington Martin agreed "I do believe we need either a reevaluation or a reassessment. I think the reevaluation is the process we should use."

Mrs. Shukaitis had prepared a resolution favoring a reevaluation. However the other two commissioners, who had not seen the resolution prior to the meeting, felt it was too highly detailed and said they could not vote upon it without first having time to study it.

Also, Hintze wanted it noted in the resolution, as it was in 1957, that, according to state law, for one year following a reassessment or reevaluation, school districts were limited to 105 per cent of their millage for the prior year and other divisions to 105 per cent.

Instead, a motion that "we need a reevaluation program by the tax study group and assessor's office as stated on June 20" was made by Hintze and seconded by Martin.

The motion was approved, but Mrs. Shukaitis abstained because she felt her more detailed resolution would be a stronger action by the commissioners.

Hintze said "I think if the commissioners cite their intentions this is sufficient for them to proceed (with the reevaluation) at this time."

The assessor's reevaluation plan would include new aerial photographs of the county at a cost of about $8,000, a revised assessment manual on both land values and building values, the hiring of extra staff members to assist in the program, and rental of extra equipment.

Hintze expressed concern as to the manner in which the reevaluation would take place. He said if it was to start with aerial photographs of the county, there would be problems because the relatively large cost was not included in the budget.

But, he felt, a revision of the manual could begin at any time.

In other business, Chief Clerk William Reaser read a letter from Richard G. Farrow, deputy commissioner in the Pennsylvania Office of Family Services, which informed the commissioners that their application for funds for the purchase of day care services for mentally retarded and physically handicapped persons had been approved. The letter said that the County would receive $2,095 in the near future.

Frank Dressler, executive director of TIRAC, replied in a letter to the commissioner's suggestion that TIRAC look into the possibilities of a sociological survey.

The letter listed three points of information which TIRAC would need to know about the survey. These were: more detailed information as to the objectives of the survey that the commissioners had in mind, more detailed information as to the type of the survey.

Dressler's letter said that the survey would have to be either financed from special sources or delayed until it fitted into the regular TIRAC budget. The budget is locked until then, he said.

County Treasurer Thomas Joyce received the approval of the commissioners to sell $20,000 worth of old bonds and to put the money into treasury notes.

Joyce told the commissioners that the old bonds had been purchased about 1947, and that he had been unable to discover what the price was at that time. The bonds earned two and one-half per cent interest, which Joyce said was "nice in 1947, but ridiculous in 1968."

The bonds, which would reach the full value of $20,000 in 1972, are worth $17,800 at this time. Joyce said they are "not worth carrying" when they can be put into treasury notes until August, 1969, and earn six per cent.

The commissioners also authorized upon the request of Monroe County Planner Leonard Ziolkowski, a contract for grant of $4,000 of federal money received for purchase of the Posten property by the Third St. playground. The federal money is one-half the cost of the property, the state contributing the other one-half. Prior to the regular meeting, the commissioners held a salary board meeting, at which they approved salary increases for employees in the TIRAC offices. Although the county does not pay their salaries, it is handled through the treasurer's office.

They approved the following increases: Thomas E. Klock, $12,500 to $13,300; Robert C. Porter, $12,000 to $13,200; Charles A. Boster, $11,500 to $12,127; Mary L. Herdman, $5,200 to $5,460; Irene M. Lee, $4,200 to $4,472; and Donna L. Pate, $3,800 to $3,990.

The board approved the salary of Judy Mae Fish, a secretary in the district attorney's office, at $1.50 an hour for 35 hours a week.

Also, Sheriff Forrest Sebring informed the board that Noreen Price had been hired as a new secretary to replace Pat VanWhy. The board approved a salary of $75 a week.

Tobyhanna youth, 17, killed by E-L train

TOBYHANNA — Monroe County did not make it through the long holiday without a fatality.

A 17-year-old Tobyhanna youth was killed Sunday night, the last day of the July 4th weekend, by an Erie-Lackawanna Railroad train.

Monroe County Coroner John C. F. Foelker Monday said, "Death was caused by a crushed skull and it is an accidental death."

According to State Police at Mount Pocono, who were first on the scene, the body of Michael John Rovlenshik of Box 9, Tobyhanna, was killed by Train 5, a passenger train with two engines and six cars which passed through the village Sunday at 10:07 p.m.

The youth's body was discovered Monday at 6:10 a.m. by Kenneth Fullz, park superintendent at Gouldsboro and Tobyhanna State Parks, when he was going to work.

The body was found some 20 feet from the railroad station in Tobyhanna. The point of impact was 156 feet from where the body was found.

Michael J. Rovlenshik

Police said the body traveled 30 feet through the air from where it was hit, at the intersection of the highway and the grade crossing, then rolled another 126 feet before coming to a stop.

The top of the youth's head was cut off by some object on the train.

The coroner and police said they did not suspect any foul play.

Foelker said the boy had left a friend's home and was headed for his home in the housing project near the rear gate of Tobyhanna Army Depot.

Arthur C. Scott, 44, of Upper Saddle River, N. J., engineer of the train, was contacted Monday in Ohio. He said he had no knowledge of hitting the boy or any other object.

Born in Scranton, Michael was a son of John and Mildred Palfrey Rovlenshik, of Tobyhanna. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Janice Lowe, Portland, Ore.

He was a member of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church in Tobyhanna, and a 1968 graduate of Pocono Central Catholic High School, where he was a member of the baseball team. He was also interested in other sports.

Michael had lived in Tobyhanna the past four years, and before that in the Olyphant area.

His father is employed at Tobyhanna Army Depot and his mother at Camp Pegawitha.

Services will be held Thursday in the Arthur J. Frey Funeral Home, South Sterling, with Mass at 9:30 a.m. in St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, Tobyhanna.

Burial will be in St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Cemetery, Moscow.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Wednesday after 7 p.m. Rosary will be said at 8 p.m.

Rooney continues gun law support

By DAVID OTTAWAY

Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. Fred B. Rooney has received close to 1,400 letters, telegrams and petitions to date on the issue of gun-control legislation, with the vast majority of his constituents now favoring the registration of guns and the licensing of their owners.

An aide to the congressman said Monday that mail was now running four to one in favor of strong gun-control measures.

For a time, however, the trend was just the opposite.

The aide attributed the earlier trend to a letter-writing campaign sparked by the National Rifle Assn., the principal center of opposition to stiffer gun-control laws.

The association was reported to have urged its nearly one million members to write their congressmen and ask them to oppose pending gun-control legislation.

Immediately following the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy on June 5, Congress was deluged with letters demanding stronger controls over firearms.

Thus, in the past month, Rooney, like most other congressmen, has watched the trend in his mail change twice on the controversial issue.

This week, key committees in both the House and Senate will decide the fate of various gun-control measures now before congress.

Rooney has already said that he will support legislation to ban the mail-order sale of rifles and shotguns and to require the registration of all firearms.

However, he believes that it is "needless duplication" to require both the registration of guns and the licensing of their owners.

He also believes that the cost of registration should be borne by the federal government and not by gun owners.

In a statement issued June 20, Rooney said that "charging a fee either to register or license a firearm would impose a penalty on sportsmen and other legitimate gun owners which I consider totally unnecessary."

According to his aide, Rooney is concerned about the probable rise in registration fees once the principle is accepted and made law. The aide pointed to the history of gun registration fees in New York, where he said the initial fee had been set at $20 cents but had slowly risen to $50.

Rooney has defended his position that the federal government should pay the cost of registration on the ground that "the public interest will be served by a registration procedure which forbids gun possession by criminals and the mentally incompetent."

In his June 20 statement, Rooney pointed out that stronger gun controls alone would not insure an end to crimes of violence.

"But controls will provide law enforcement officers new legislative tools with which to fight the criminal element," he said.

'Get Lucky' is life for real

By PAT WILLIAMS

Pocono Record Reporter
MOUNTAINHOME — A Girl Could Get Lucky, Rowena Stevens' current production at Pocono Playhouse, is a peep into married life and how lucky people are without realizing it.

Rosemary, Prinz, as Penny, displays her talent for comedy and her ease at switching moods in the funny play between a girl about to be married and the girl who is.

Her suitor, then husband, William Andrews, as Andy, is big, bumbling and lovable.

Both of the characters are done well. It's an enjoyable play, made all the more enjoyable because the characters are quite familiar, and the dialogue is similar to the husband and wife clash of wit in every marriage.

The play is based on the superficial differences that overlay honest marital love.

Miss Prinz brings life and freshness to the part which won the audience Monday night. Andrews was right on top with swift lines and rapid reactions, to the part.

The set by Larry Mills, lighted by Lloyd Freides, is the type that earmarks all Pocono Playhouse productions.

The play is funny, it is fun, both characters and audience enjoyed the evening.

Luis Tiant, Don Drysdale to start 39th All-Star game

HOUSTON (UPI)—Don Drysdale, Mr. Zero of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was nominated as the National League's starting pitcher for a record-equaling fifth time Monday and drew an arm-weary "rookie" Luis Tiant of Cleveland as his opponent for the 39th All-Star Game tonight.

The NL, seeking an unprecedented sixth consecutive victory over the American League, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite on the basis of added experience, a stronger defense and the strange artificial atmosphere of the Astrodome, which will play host to the first indoor contest in All-Star history. The NL leads the series 20-17 with one tie.

A standing room crowd in excess of 50,000 is expected at the unique stadium for the 7:15 p.m. (8:15 p.m. EDT) contest, the first All-Star Game to be played at night since World War II.

Luis Tiant

Drysdale, whose selection by manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals tied him with Lefty Gomez of the New York Yankees and Robing Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies for the most starting appearances by a pitcher in All-Star annals, boasts a 1-1 record and a 1.65 earned run average in seven previous All-Star games. Earlier this season, the strong-armed right-hander set major league records for most consecutive shutouts (6) and scoreless innings (58.23).

By contrast, Tiant, a hard-throwing right-hander with a baffling delivery, is making his first appearance in this mid-summer classic. The Cuban-born hurler, who is 14-5 on the season with a sparkling 1.24 ERA, will be giving away two days of rest as well as considerable experience to Drysdale (10-5).

Tiant pitched 6 1-3 innings Sunday while Drysdale hasn't worked since last Friday night. Dick Williams, the Boston Red Sox manager, who is handling the AL squad, was not the slightest bit hesitant at nominating Tiant since all seven of his pitchers worked on either Saturday or Sunday.

"I decided on Tiant when I named him to the team," said Williams. "I think he's a damned fine pitcher. We don't have the big name pitchers the National League has, but we have guys who can throw."

Schoendienst's decision was a simpler one. His own ace, Bob Gibson, as well as Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants, who has started two All-Star games, both pitched Saturday.

"I picked Drysdale because he had the longest rest of the established veterans," said Schoendienst. "I can't say now who will be the second or third pitcher until I find out how they feel tonight. All of the other pitchers are young enough to come back for three innings after a couple of days rest."

Williams also declined to disclose his pitching plans after Tiant. Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers, the AL's top winner with a 16-2 mark, Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees (11-5), Tommy John of the Chicago White Sox (7-0) and John Odom of the Oakland Athletics (7-5) all worked Sunday. Gary Bell of the Red Sox (7-3) and southpaw Sam McDowell of the Indians (8-8) pitched Saturday.

Tiant's first All-Star exposure could be an unpleasant one because the first batter he will face on the synthetic Astro turf is Willie Mays of the Giants, who holds five records in the classic as well as a .355 average in 18 previous games. Mays, a replacement for the injured Pete Rose, will play centerfield and leadoff for the fifth time. He socked a leadoff homer in 1965 at Minnesota to start the NL on its way to a 6-5 victory.

Mays will be followed by Curt Flood of the Cardinals in leftfield, first baseman Willie McCovey of the Giants, rightfielder Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, second baseman Tommy Helms of the Reds, catcher Jerry Grote of the New York Mets, shortstop Don Kessinger of the Cubs and Drysdale.

Schoendienst said that when Flood, a centerfielder by trade, was informed by Mays' elevation to the starting team, he volunteered to play left.

"Let me play left field," Flood, who is starting for the first time in All-Star competition, said to Schoendienst with a grin. "He's played centerfield longer than I have."

Williams has a more vexing problem in his outfield. All three starters—Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox, Frank Howard of the Washington Senators and Willie Horton of the Tigers—are left fielders and of the three, only Yaz has the ability to play center.

"To my recollection," said Williams, "Howard has never played right field and Howard has. So Horton will be in left and Howard in right."

Neither the cumbersome Howard, the major leagues' leading home run hitter with 25, nor the footsore Horton can be expected to be around long, however, on a field where exceptional speed is mandatory.

"I'll put Rick Monday of the A's in centerfield and Tony Oliva of the Twins in right," said Williams, "and move Yaz to left field as soon as possible, probably after three innings."

According to All-Star rules, each starter must play three innings except in the case of injury and no pitcher may work more than three unless the game goes into extra innings as it did last year when the NL defeated the AL 2-1 in 15 innings at Anaheim, Calif.

Don Drysdale

Yastrzemski, the only .300 hitter on the AL starting squad with a .301 mark, will bat third, followed by Howard and Horton. Shortstop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels will lead off, followed by second baseman Rod Carew of the Twins.

Harmon Killebrew of the Twins will bat sixth, catcher Bill Freehan of the Tigers seventh, third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles eighth and Tiant ninth.

The one edge seemingly enjoyed by the AL is in power. The Americans' starting lineup has been responsible for 105 homers this season compared to 58 for the NL regulars. The vast size of the Astrodome, however, plus the lack of any aiding breeze, has made the park a slugger's graveyard.

Packers must have ample drills or won't face College All-Stars

NEENAH, Wis. (UPI)—General Manager Vince Lombardi said Monday night the Green Bay Packers would not participate in the College All-Star Game unless the players' dispute was settled in time for sufficient conditioning.

Lombardi, at a news conference after the world football champions' annual golf outing for news media, said meetings in Chicago earlier Monday in efforts to settle the dispute produced "no progress whatsoever."

The All-Star Game, featuring the Packers and the best of last season's college players, is scheduled for Chicago Aug. 2.

The Packers had been scheduled to open training camp Wednesday, but no National Football League training camps will open until agreement is reached between the owners and the NFL Players' Association.

Lombardi said the lack of progress in the talks raises the "possibility the All-Star Game could be canceled."

"The Packers, as you know, have always placed great emphasis on conditioning. To play a game without proper conditioning would be a fraud upon the public, upon television and everyone connected with football."

Lombardi said he couldn't say at this time how soon the dispute would have to be settled before he would allow the Packers to play in the All-Star Game.

However, Phil Bengtson, who succeeded Lombardi as coach this year, said he figured it would take two and a half to three weeks to get the Packers ready to play again.

Lombardi was asked if an American Football League team would be selected to face the All Stars in the event the Packers pull out.

"I doubt it very much," he said. "The other teams won't be in camp."

Lombardi said the "only hangup" in the negotiations was the pension plan and "part of the reason is because of the commitment to the AFL in the merger."

The NFL and AFL are scheduled to complete their merger in 1970 and Lombardi said there was "no way we can forecast now what our finances will be then."

Bengtson said the players had been working out on their own and emphasized that he expected both the veterans and rookies to continue such workouts so that "when formal training begins they will be ready."

"We'll have no formal practice until we're told," Bengtson said. "But one way or another, the players are going to do the best they can to get in good physical condition on their own."

"Anybody likes smooth sailing," Bengtson said. "But you've got to expect things that are far from smooth sailing."

NFL players reject offer of 25 per cent increase

CHICAGO (UPI)—National Football League Players Association representatives Monday night rejected an offer of the owners to increase their contributions to the pension fund by 25 per cent and their negotiations apparently broke off again.

The owners made the offer to boost the pension program in consultations with the players earlier Monday, but a players' spokesman said, "There was no formal type meeting."

John Gordy, president of the players association, said the players were "willing to negotiate on a year by year basis in order to arrive at benefits approaching baseball's by 1970."

But, he said, "the offer of the 25 per cent increase for one year that we received today from the owners still finds baseball's projected benefits 100 per cent above those of football."

"We are still maintaining that we are ready, willing and able to meet with the owners at any time to resolve this issue."

The association's spokesman indicated there would be no further meetings between the players and owners at this time. He said he believed most of the players would leave Chicago Monday night.

Opening of the National League training camps have been delayed as a result of the dispute between the players and owners and the players' decision not to report until a contract has been agreed upon. General Manager Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers told a news conference in Neenah, Wis., after returning from the negotiations that "no progress whatsoever" had been made. He said the "only hangup" was the pension plan.

Among those at the meetings was Art Modell, president of the NFL and owner of the Cleveland Browns.

The players have threatened a strike unless the NFL owners offer an improved pension program, a higher minimum salary for rookies and more money per game for preseason exhibition contests.

Lombardi said the planned merger of the NFL and the American Football League in 1970 and the unpredictable financial situation of the teams at that time were a factor in the inability to come to agreement on improvements in the pension plan.

Modell issued a statement earlier to the effect that all teams will delay the start of summer training until an agreement is worked out.

The San Francisco Forty Niners were scheduled to open their training camp for rookies and a few veterans Sunday but the camp was inactive while team officials awaited strike developments. Detroit is scheduled to open its camp Tuesday while Dallas, New Orleans and Green Bay were slated to open Wednesday.

Lombardi said the Packers would not participate in the college All-Star game in Chicago Aug. 2 if the players' dispute was not settled in time for the team to have sufficient conditioning.

Roseto hands Varsity S sixth setback

STROUBSBERG — Roseto made the most of its seven hits Monday night to gain a 9-3 win over the Varsity S (7-6) in the Northampton County American Legion League.

Al Lobb was touched for 10 hits but had only one rough inning when the host nine scored twice in the third to knot the game at 2-2.

But Roseto quickly regained the lead as it took advantage of three walks by loser Ed Strunk to score five times in the fourth. A two-run triple by Triguera was the big blow.

Tim Walsh had three singles for the losers while Strunk and Dave Shook each had two.

All-Star ducats have rain checks

HOUSTON (UPI)—Each of the more than 50,000 fans entering the Astrodome Tuesday night for the All-Star game will bear a reminder of rain even though threatening weather is no longer a factor in this unique indoor sports palace.

No game has ever been rained out in Houston since the construction of the Astrodome and no game likely ever will be as long as the glass roof remains intact.

Yet, the tickets for the 39th mid-season classic all include rain checks.

Lifesaving classes start

STROUBSBERG — Life saving classes, both junior and senior, start at 11 a.m. today at the Stroudsburg park pool.

Sam Everitt has announced that anyone who had not signed up in advance may do so at this time.

Bankers upset Cramers, 11-8

EAST STROUBSBERG — The East Stroudsburg National Bank scored three times in the 8th inning Monday night to gain an 11-8 win over R. C. Cramers in the East Stroudsburg Little League.

Ed Mosko gained the win over Jack Boffo, the last of five pitchers for Cramers. The losers are now 3-2 in the second half.

Royals sign third choice

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Royals Monday announced they signed Fred Foster, their No. 3 draft choice, to a contract for the 1968-69 season.

Foster, a 6-foot-5, 210-pound forward from Miami University, averaged 26.8 points per game for the Redskins.

Crowe outscored Eagles, 17 to 10

STROUBSBERG — Crowe Insurance unleashed a 17-hit attack Monday night en route to a 17-10 win over the Eagles in the Optimist Babe Ruth League.

Jim Renfro and Scott Fisher each doubled for the winners (7-4) while Dotter, Doug Schoonover and Jim Hopkins had two-baggers for the Eagles. Joe DeVivo allowed six hits in besting Doug Schoonover.

DeVincenzo turns in another sub-par round in practice

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (UPI) — Defending champion Roberto DeVincenzo of Argentina turned in another blistering sub-par round Monday in a practice round for Wednesday's opening of the British Open golf championship and indicated that the oddsmakers might be selling him short.

DeVincenzo, who has not been playing up to form in recent weeks, has been listed as a 14-1 underdog for the British Open but made those odds look a bit high Monday when he turned in a six-under par 66 over the 7,252-yard, par 72 course. It was the second straight strong round for the 45-year-old veteran, who carded a 65 Sunday to tie South Africa's Bobby Cole for the nine nations title.

"I don't understand this business of betting, but I think it's foolish to bet against any man in the field especially an international set," said DeVincenzo. "I am hitting the ball perfectly right now and my putts are dropping. But this is a funny game and tomorrow maybe I'll play poorly."

Jack Nicklaus, the favorite, also played a round Monday but did not keep score and refused to discuss his play.

"I'm still feeling out the course," Nicklaus said. Arnold Palmer and Bert Yancey, two other leading Americans entered in the tournament, played in a four-some with Tony Jacklin and Bruce Devlin but neither was satisfied with his performance. "I haven't played Carnoustie in some time," said Palmer.

"I'm only just beginning to feel things out. Nothing has worked out yet, but hopefully I'll get organized."

Yancey, was depressed about his form and like many others was unsure how to play the rugged course.

"Under present conditions we all can eat this course up, but none of us had had a chance to play in the wind. There's not much point in playing anymore unless the wind shifts up. Then the course will become a Tiger."

Billy Casper, the leading money-winner on the PGA tour this season, agreed with Yancey and said he would not play today unless the wind was prevalent.

The tournament opens Wednesday.

Rutherford to run in Nazareth race

NAZARETH — Johnny Rutherford, 1965 United States Auto Club national sprint car champion, has tossed his helmet into the challenger's circle for the 100 mile USAC National Championship big car race at the Nazareth National Speedway, Saturday night.

Thus, Rutherford joins a field of more than 20 of the nation's fastest and finest speedway stars who will see action on the big 1 1/4 mile dirt track. The event will mark the first time ever that the USAC Championship cars have raced at night under the lights.

Rutherford, who hails from Ft. Worth, Tex., began his racing career in 1959, driving super-modifieds at the Devil's Bowl Speedway in Dallas.

Johnny joined USAC in 1962 and saw action in the Hoosier Hundred in Indianapolis. He drove a Chevy at Daytona Beach, Fla., in February of 1963 and set a new track record of 165.181 in qualifying and won his 100-mile qualifying race. In May, he passed his Indy driver's test and finished the "500" 29th in Eddie Rosten's car.

In 1964, Rutherford drove the Bardahl roadster at Indy but was involved in the second-lap accident which cost the life of Eddie Sachs and Dave McDonald. In addition to winning the national sprint car title in 1965, Rutherford won his first national championship race, at Atlanta, Ga., a 250 miles.

Rutherford took a spectacular flip in a sprint race at the Eldora Speedway, Rossburg, Ohio, in April of 1966 and broke both arms, thus missing the "500." In 1967, however, he came back and qualified at 162.858 mph and started 19th.

He was running 13th when he hit the inside wall on the back straightaway on his 104th lap and finished 25th. Johnny finished 18th in this year's "500" when an oil leak put his Eagle Ford out of business after 125 laps.

Other outstanding drivers in the Nazareth "100" include Indy 500 winner Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N. M.; hometown favorite Mario Andretti, Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Tex.; Billy Vukovich and George Spier of Fresno, Calif.; Gary Bettenhausen of Tinsley Park, Ill., and Bob Tattersall of Streator, Ill.

Advance sales of tickets is still going on and info is available by calling 215-758-0323. The ticket office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Speedway is located at the junction of Routes 191 and 248, Nazareth. Time trials at 5:30 and qualifying time trials at 6:30. Fastest 18 qualifying start at 8:30 p.m.

Oilers sign Sonny Bishop

HOUSTON (UPI)—Veteran offensive guard Sonny Bishop has signed a two-year contract with the Houston Oilers, the American Football League club announced Sunday.

Bishop, a 6-2, 245-pound Fresno State graduate, has started for the Oilers since 1964.

Bishop began his pro career as a San Diego draftee. He was traded to Dallas and then to Oakland in 1963. He came to the Oilers in the deal which sent Billy Cannon to Oakland.

Dr. Fager assigned top weight

OCEANPORT, N.J. (UPI)—Tartan Stable's Dr. Fager, who outdueled archrival Damascus in the Suburban Handicap July 4 at Aqueduct, Monday was assigned top weight of 134 pounds for Saturday's running of the $100,000 added Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park.

Dr. Fager, who will carry two more pounds than he did in the Suburban, won the 1 1/4 mile race by two lengths over Bold Hour, with Damascus third.

Kenneth H. Lennox, Monmouth's racing secretary and handicapper, assigned Bold Hour 116 pounds, the same weight he carried in the Suburban, and listed Damascus, the 1967 Horse of the Year, at 131 pounds, two less than he carried in his duel with Dr. Fager.

Also assigned 116 pounds were Fort Marcy, the 1967 turf champion, and Proud Clarion, the 1967 Kentucky Derby winner. Out Of The Way, winner of the Jersey Derby and the Massachusetts Handicap, was the top weighted 3-year-old at 115 pounds.

In reality, whose fifth place finish in the Suburban marked only the second time in his career he has run out of the money, was declared out of the Haskell.

Miss Whitworth stays on top

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Kathy Whitworth remained in first place on the money-winning list of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association this week as only one change was noted in the top ten standings.

Marilynn Smith moved from eighth to seventh place in the standings, changing places with Sandra Spuzich who moved back to the eighth position.

2. Carol Mann (4) $18,795
3. Mickey Wright (4) $14,612

Jim Fregosi of the California Angels tries out AstroTurf, the synthetic infield at the Astrodome as the American League All-Stars held their first and only workout prior to tonight's All-Star game. With Fregosi is Minnesota manager Cal Ermer, a coach for the AL All-Stars. (See other pictures and stories on page 10.)

Fregosi: turf is beautiful, hope they don't hit to me

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Jim Fregosi, the quick witted shortstop of the California Angels, jogged off the synthetic infield at the Astrodome with a smile on his lips.

"It's beautiful," he cracked. "I just hope they don't hit any ground balls at me."

That was the general reaction of the American League team after getting its first look at the indoor sports palace where the 38th all-star game will be played tonight. All agreed it was going to be a challenge.

"The ball is quicker," quoted third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles. "It seems to pick up speed coming through. You just have to tell yourself it's a fast infield and get ready for it."

All of the AL starters with the exception of center-fielder Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox and catcher Bill

Freehan of the Detroit Tigers were on hand for the first and only workout prior to the game.

Yaz is scheduled to arrive Tuesday and Freehan was due in Monday night along with Detroit pitcher Denny McLain. Willie Horton, who will start in left field was awed as were many of the players.

"It's strange," said Horton. "The flies are hard to see up high and the ground is real hard."

Horton and right fielder Frank Howard, the massive six-foot-seven star of the Washington Senators, were expected to have the greatest difficulty with the plastic playing surface.

"The hopes are fast," agreed Howard. "It's a little faster than on normal fields. But the bounces are fairly true. I don't anticipate any problems. I sure hope we don't have any."

Howard had little trouble reaching the distant seats in the air condition park where homers are notoriously hard to come by. He drove two into the left center field bleachers, including one approximately 450 feet, and another into the left field seats as an enthusiastic crowd of tourists gasped in admiration.

"That guy tonight might make things a little more difficult," grinned Howard in reference to Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who will start for the National League.

Jim Arness leading race

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Cowboy actor Jim Arness' "Sea- smoke" was leading the 1968 Multihull Transpacific Yacht Race by approximately 75 miles today.

The catamarans were 700 miles off the Southern California coast, about one-third of the way to the finish line at Honolulu, at the beginning of the fourth day of the race.

The "Lani Kai", owned by Dr. Martin Crumrine, was second, and the "Manu Iwa", owned by sportsman Lance Reventlow was moving up in third place, about 50 miles behind the "Lani Kai".

Rain curtails Swedish tourney

Allen feels pension dispute could hurt Rams' flag hopes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Two veterans and two rookies definitely won't be reporting to the Los Angeles Rams football training camp here, coach George Allen announced Monday.

Dan McIlhenny, a defensive back from Texas A&M who joined the Rams about four years ago, has informed Allen he is retiring.

Another veteran, offensive tackle Bob Nichols, has been inducted into the Army, as were rookies Leon Moore and Perry Parks. Parks was a defensive lineman from Los Angeles State and Moore was a defensive back from Tennessee A&M.

A pension dispute between players and the National Football League, which threatened to delay opening of the Rams training camp, could hurt the team more than other NFL teams, Allen said, because he feels the squad has the ingredients to win the league championship.

Allen said that if training begins on time, he hopes to win all of the preseason games because this would provide momentum for the Rams when the regular season opens.

In a meeting with newsmen, Allen said he plans to use running back Dick Bass into the last preseason game—the Sept. 6 encounter with the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

The coach said he plans to play Tommy Mason in about the last three preseason games and will use quarterback Milt Plum more in the preseason contests than he used Bill Munson last year so that newcomer Plum can familiarize himself with the Rams' system.

Allen said Roosevelt Grier, the defensive tackle who missed

76ers, Lakers call news conferences

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers Monday called a news conference for today when they are expected to clear up reports of a trade of superstar Wilt Chamberlain to the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Lakers also have called a news conference for the same time.

Chamberlain's trade to the Lakers for three players and cash has been rumored for weeks, but both clubs have refused to comment.

The deal was reported to have been completed last week, but a 76ers spokesman said it had not been.

Chamberlain, himself, probably is the final stumbling block to such a trade because of the high price of his talents. His salary is uncertain, but is believed to be as high as $250,000.

According to rumors, Chamberlain was to be dealt to the Lakers for Jerry Chambers, Archie Clark and Darvall Imhoff. Acquisition of Chamberlain would give the Lakers the greatest three-man attack in the history of the National Basketball Association, linking him with Elgin Baylor and Jerry West.

Louis: Sonny no worse than third contender

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Former world's heavyweight champion Joe Louis said today he believed Sonny Liston should be rated no worse than third among contenders for the heavyweight crown off his 7th round knockout win over Henry Clark Saturday in San Francisco.

Louis said at his headquarters here that he is working with Detroit hotelman Sunny Wilson in attempting to match Liston with Michigan's contender, Buster Mathis, this fall.

"I believe Liston's strong performance against 23-year-old Clark proves Sonny deserves a high ranking among contenders," Louis said. "It seems to me he should be rated no worse than third behind Jimmy Ellis and Joe Frazier, or Joe Frazier and Jimmy Ellis, if you would rather put it that way."

Louis said he believed Liston should be ranked above Jerry Quarry, who lost to Ellis in a World Boxing Association match, and Mathis, who was stopped by Frazier in a New York "title fight."

"I have just talked to Wilson in Detroit and he has authorized me to negotiate with Liston and his manager, Dick Saddler, for a fight with Mathis in Detroit later this year," Louis said.

Two German cyclists die

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (UPI)—Two German motorcyclists were killed Sunday in a spectacular crash while trying to overtake the leader on the last lap of the sidecar competition in the motorcycle Grand Prix of Belgium.

Johann Altenberger, 32, and his co-driver, Joseph Schilling, 28, were killed when the wheels of their motorbike hit the edge of the track. The bike leaped over some spectators and landed in a nearby garden. None of the spectators was injured.

Altenberger and Schilling, leaders in the world championship standings, were trying to pull out the victory in a heated duel with fellow German Georg Auerbacher, who was leading.

Liston to get $12,000 offer

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Olympic Auditorium matchmaker Mickey Davies Monday said he would offer former heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston $12,000 to fight the winner of Thursday night's Joe Orillo-Amos Lincoln bout here.

If Liston accepts the offer, the fight probably would be held here in mid-August, Davies said.

Roquepine early Trot favorite

NEW YORK (UPI)—French-bred Roquepine was listed as an early 5-2 favorite Monday for Saturday night's $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway.

Roquepine, one of the world's outstanding trotters, drew the No. 6 post position Monday for Saturday night's big event and is expected to receive a stiff challenge from Canadian-bred Fresh Yankee and United States-bred Carlisle. Fresh Yankee is listed as a 7-2 choice in the early line while Carlisle is listed as 3-1.

Others in the race include Ecumene (8-1), LeChant (6-1), Epsom (20-1), Simmer (20-1) and Kentucky Fibber (20-1).

Mr. English only needs: a gas grill, and less than 20 minutes.

Remember when the iceman 'cameth'?

Those were the days when the milk turned sour if the iceman came late. When ice cream wouldn't keep. And food could spoil easily. But what could you do? Buy a new refrigerator? There were no refrigerators.

Today, the problem's which refrigerator. The one that defrosts itself? Or the one with the larger freezer compartment?

There are people who think the problem of choosing is the problem. The choice is too big. Too difficult. Too much competition only confuses you. So, in the name of "Consumer Protection" they want to limit your choice.

Our economy was built on free competition. That's why our free choice keeps getting bigger and better. And if somebody introduces tomorrow's refrigerator today, wouldn't you want to be able to buy it?

Be choosy.
